HIGH WIND ADDS TO 'FLY'S' PERILS

BUT HARRY H. GARDINER GOES CLEAR TO EXTREME TOP.

DAY THOT SUCCESSFUL BY COMMERCIAL CLUB

Many Thousands Came to Maryville and Two Extra Climbs Were Made—Other Features Please.

Working under the most adverse of conditions and in constantly increasing danger because of the very high wind, Harry H. Gardiner, "The Human Fly," demonstrated to the most skeptical his right to the title when he perched on the topmost point of the courthouse tower at 5:30 yesterday afternoon.

A much greater appreciation of the feat could have been secured by the crowd if all could have stood for a few minutes high in the tower above the clock and have felt the force of the gale as it blew through the windows. The very tower seemed to rock and sway slightly in the breeze.

As it was the crowd had little conception of the force of the wind until the flag was unfurled. Then the fierce flapping of the folds and the bending of the steel pole which Gardiner attached with much difficulty to the tower demonstrated just what the man had to contend with. It was then that he was given his first real ovation.

The high wind made several changes necessary. The flag could not be placed upon the weather vane and Gardiner found it necessary to use a rope in scaling one point in the tower where ledges were too lacking for safe hand holds. And again the writer wished that all the crowd might have been in the tower as "The Fly" climbed even with the rope to have seen to their own satisfaction how Gardiner strains and grunts and groans.

Looked So Easy From Ground. It seems to be done so easily as one watches it from the ground. But in the tower it seems that he will never be able to make it over the next ledge. The front face of the tower up to the bell was the really difficult part of the climb. The most thrilling part of the climb for the crowd, however, was up the slanting slate roof to the metal coping at the summit.

It was a wonderful sight from the tower also to look down on the "seething sea" of people, variously estimated from 10,000 to 15,000 people. All of Main street from Third to Fourth streets was crowded, as was the courthouse yard wherever the tower could be seen. At least 500 people were on top of the buildings around the square.

Manager Burgen is a great help to Gardiner in his climbing by words of advice and "moral" support at critical times. The Maryville Commercial club were very pleased with the results of the day in every respect. It is confidently believed that 1,000 cars were parked along the streets of Maryville. The curbing of every street leading out from the square was lined for blocks.

Mr. Gardiner was most generous with his work, throwing in two extra buildings and climbing down as well as up, although his contract did not call for this. He was a jollier of the crowd and often warned them to get out from below as some of the bricks were loose. "If you don't believe it, I'll throw down a few," he would shout.

As had been expected, many grew sick and had to turn away as the "Fly" went higher and higher. So far as can be learned, however, no one fainted during the day. The courthouse tower is 120 feet high from ground to top.

Parade Was Good Feature. A most successful day was the verdict of the people in referring to the celebration yesterday. From the climbing of the "Human Fly" to the parade everything was just as planned.

STANBERRY'S TIME

SO MARYVILLE FEDS LOST HARD-FOUGHT GAME.

LED 3-1 UNTIL NINTH

Miller Redeems "Boner" Wednesday by Two Doubles and Errorless Ball in Field.

"It's my turn to win." This seems to be the way the games between the Stanberry Red Sox and Maryville Reds end up. Beginning with last summer the two teams have been so evenly matched that they could each almost figure on "every other game."

Yesterday, after everybody thought that we had the game safely tucked away when we had a 3-1 lead at the end of the seventh, the Red Sox scored one in the eighth and came back with two more runs in the ninth, winning the game, 4-3.

It was a pretty pitchers' battle up to the ninth when York weakened slightly, allowing a triple and single in quick succession after one was out. This tied the count, and Thiemann was sent to the mound in the hope of stopping the rally. But before he could get warmed up another man had sent the platter with the winning run. In the Reds' half of the ninth Miller cracked out his second double after there were two down, but Tilson ended the game with a grasser to the pitcher.

Maryville's scores came in the fourth and seventh. In the fourth Stephens hit for a base and tallied on Vaughn's double. Two runs were manufactured in the seventh by a couple of errors and Tilson's single.

Miller played well yesterday, getting two doubles and accepting four hard chances without error.

York, who pitched for the Reds, is a former Nebraska State league pitcher. Bedford comes to Maryville for a game Sunday.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Maryville 000 100 200—3 6 3 Stanberry 009 100 012—4 9 3

Summary: Two-base hits—Miller 3, Vaughn, Cowal. Three-base hits—Cowal, H. Summa. Bases on balls—Off Hawthorne 1. Struck out—By Hawthorne 7, by York 1. Hit by pitcher—By Hawthorne 1, by York 1. Double plays—Scott to Vaughn to Tilson. Left on bases—Stanberry 6, Maryville 8. The umpires were McCarty of Stanberry and Bock of Hopkins.

Mrs. Joe Linneman, her two children, Coletha and Gregory, and Mr. and Mrs. Kimmert of Conception Junction spent yesterday in Maryville.

C. W. Yehle went to St. Louis last night on a business trip.

Woodrow Wilson

Special to The Democrat-Forum. Washington, D. C., June 16.—On the occasion of Woodrow Wilson's renomination to the presidency by the Democratic party, a brief review of the life of the president is in order.

From the Democratic standpoint the greatest things President Wilson has done are undoubtedly (1) his overthrow of the New Jersey bosses as governor of that state; (2) the Underwood tariff law; (3) the new federal reserve bank act.

The world today probably stands too close to the Mexican and European war situation for anyone to judge Mr. Wilson's part in these episodes correctly, and the ultimate verdict must be left to the historian of the future.

Mr. Wilson has the happy attribute of combining sympathy with both the south and the north in his character. Both claim him as their own and with some justice in each case. He was born in the south but has spent most of his life in the north.

His grandfather, James Wilson, was a Scotchman who settled in Philadelphia. From there he went to Steubenville, Ohio, published a newspaper and practiced law. The president's father, Joseph R. Wilson, was born in Steubenville and later went to Staunton, Va. He married Jessie Woodrow, and their son, named Woodrow, was born in Staunton December 28, 1857. The president is therefore now 59 years old.

His parents moved to Georgia about two years after Mr. Wilson's birth and in that state he passed the troubled years of the Civil war. Then the family moved again, this time to South Carolina. Woodrow was now ready (Continued on page 4.)

Re-Nominated Vice-President

VICE PRESIDENT THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

Thomas R. Marshall

Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall, who has presided over the senate for more than three years, has had a post which by its nature is not very conspicuous and he has not been in the limelight, except when one of his quaint sayings has attracted attention in the press.

Mr. Marshall has always been of a somewhat studious, quiet, retiring nature, but his deep scholarship and reserve of force have carried him to his present position, where more glittering talents have failed.

He was born in North Manchester, Wabash county, Indiana, March 14, 1854, and is therefore now 60 years old. His father was a well-to-do physician. Mr. Marshall is a grandnephew of Chief Justice John Marshall and a direct descendant through his mother of Charles Carroll Carrollton, who signed the Declaration of Independence.

He was graduated from Wabash college in 1873 and then studied law in the office of Judge Walter Ods at Port Wayne. In 1874 he moved to Columbia City, Ind., and on March 14, 1875, the day he was 21 years old, he was admitted to the bar.

Soon Became Widely Known.

He soon built up a comfortable practice and became widely known for legal erudition.

When nominated for governor in 1908 there was some objection to him on the part of persons who thought he was too little known to be elected. But he campaigned hard and was successful.

He proved a strong state chief executive. In his speeches he took a stand against the centralization of American governmental power, especially as regards the regulation of monopolies.

In 1912, with Woodrow Wilson, a man from the east, selected as the Democratic standard bearer, the Baltimore convention looked around for a strong running mate from west of the Alleghenies and selected Mr. Marshall. His campaign speeches did much to assure Democratic success that year.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have no children.

The officer and two troopers were taken to Chihuahua City and are believed to be imprisoned there and the other two troopers are said to have died on the way.

El Paso, June 16.—The report that General Gaviro had been executed in Mexico City today because of his unauthorized conference with General Pershing caused a sensation here. It is reported that General Obregon, Carranza leader, ordered the execution.

NAMES SAME TWO WITH NO CONTEST

WILSON AND MARSHALL TO HEAD DEMOCRATS AGAIN.

SUFFRAGE PLANK LIKE REPUBLICAN MEASURE

Approves Action by States But Side-steps Federal Action—Convention Adjourns Today at 3:15.

Coliseum, St. Louis, June 16.—Five minutes before midnight last night Woodrow Wilson was nominated for President by the Democratic convention by acclamation. The nomination of Thomas Riley Marshall for Vice-President followed the same way.

The crowd had demonstrated for nearly an hour after the nomination speech, and only two seconding speeches were made, one by Harmon of Ohio, and the other by Governor Stuart of Virginia, when Senator Hughes of New Jersey rushed to the platform. He was out to beat the Friday hoodoo.

"I move the rules be suspended and Woodrow Wilson be nominated by acclamation," he shouted.

Went Through With A Whoop.

There was a shout of approval save from one delegate, Robert Emmett Burke of Chicago; he shouted "No" as the motion was put. There were hisses from the gallery and shouts of "Put him out."

In a moment Senator John W. Kern of Indiana took the platform and nominated Vice-President Marshall. No other names were presented and it went through with a whoop of "Ayes."

It was three minutes of 12 o'clock. While the galleries quickly emptied the convention adopted the formal resolutions thanking everybody in sight, meanwhile waiting for the platform.

At 9:15 o'clock Chairman James rapped the convention to order and the Rev. K. J. Hardesty, chaplain of the Missouri Senate, gave the invocation.

Calls For Bryan.

The crowd yielded to the rapping of the gavel long enough to hear the prayer and then renewed its demands for a speech from Bryan. Chairman James admonished the galleries.

Mr. Bryan opened by expressing his appreciation of the honor conferred by the invitation to speak to the convention.

He paid his respects in a complimentary manner to the number of Democratic officers and leaders of the present convention. Briefly Mr. Bryan then referred to the tariff revision, the Federal Reserve Law and the strengthening of the anti-trust laws. He spoke forty-five minutes and closed amid loud cheers.

Platform Makers Worked Long.

Wearily, worn and disheveled, the group of Democratic leaders of the this morning the declaration of principles upon which the Wilson and Marshall ticket will ask a return to Federal power.

The finished program was reached just as the gray of dawn streaked through the windows of the council room where the members of the committee had wrestled and struggled with the statements of the achievements and aspirations of the Democratic party.

All went through the mill of discussion and all provoked discussion and strife. Seldom has a party council faced an issue that provoked such bitter argument as the suffrage plank which finally provided the extension of franchise to women of the country by the various states upon the same terms as men.

POLITICAL NOTES (Democratic Press Bureau)

To the Republican bosses: We will take four more years of Wilson, peace and prosperity. We "let well enough alone." We take no chances in these perilous times. Signed, The People.

The insincerity of the politicians in control of the Chicago convention is apparent. If they really meant what they said in their speeches and are in earnest in the platform declarations they want war. Still they fail to point out a single instance to justify war. Furthermore, they know that the constitution vests the power to declare war in Congress and no Republican congressman has introduced in either

NEW IMPROVEMENTS AT CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., THE FAMOUS "MOTHER CHAUTAUQUA."

CHAUTAUQUA A GREAT POPULAR EDUCATOR

Impartial Discussion of Vital Subjects in World Crisis.

Chautauqua Institution, the pioneer in summer assemblies, summer schools and home reading courses, maintains its leadership in popular education by a rare combination of intellectual training, stimulating platform events and healthful recreation. Its public program again offers at a time of world crisis impartial discussion of vital subjects by authoritative leaders of public opinion.

More significant even than the in-house a resolution declaring war. In view of this their attempt to make a case against Wilson by "glittering generalities" and innuendo is such an inglorious failure as to approach the pitiable.

General Wood was considered for the head of the Republican ticket. Wood isn't the name of the man selected, but the ticket has that kind of a head; and in November it will run like its legs were wood.

General Pershing was mentioned for the Republican nomination for vice president last week. He should have been nominated. No other name so well expresses the situation of the Republican party.

Harding's keynote in the Republican National Convention was a humiliating whine for harmony, and an offer of

THE POWER BEHIND

We abuse the dust and yet there is no harm in the dust itself. It is the power behind the dust—the wind, that causes the distress.

So it is with many other things. It isn't the evil itself that causes trouble to society but the power behind the evil.

Immoral pictures couldn't make much headway if good people didn't flock to see them.

The liquor traffic would not be difficult to combat if Christian people would quit signing saloon petitions.

There isn't an immoral house in the community that could exist if the moral sentiment would assert itself.

No unworthy candidate is ever elected to office without the help of good citizens.

And if the moral sentiment of the community fails to assert itself it becomes accomplice criminis with immorality.

Put that in your think box and mentally digest it.

dividual addresses by notable men are the series of one week each on current political, social, economic and religious problems. Topics for such discussion are the defense of the nation, the Americanization of our foreign inhabitants, the church in its task of making a war cursed world, the elevation of American business to a profession, with professional breadth of training and professional loftiness of ethics; the messages of art and antiquity to modern practical life and justice. Each of the eight weeks from June 29 to Aug. 27 is devoted to some one major interest, that of Aug. 7-12 being music, with the well known Russian Symphony Orchestra engaged to supplement the regular musical resources of the Institution. The names of many educators and public men of the first rank appear in announcements just issued. Eight preachers of national reputation will give the eight Sunday morning sermons, and there are many other religious exercises.

The Chautauqua Summer Schools offer something over 200 courses in their catalog, just issued, and list over a hundred instructors, many of them prominently connected with great universities during the college months.

With its altitude of 1,400 feet, its twenty mile lake and the climate for which the region is famous, there has always been at Chautauqua the greatest variety of outdoor sports and recreations. The list now includes golf, motor, tennis, roque, bowling, gymnastics, track athletics, sailing, rowing and fishing. Somewhat amusing to note, the prospectus for the year, just issued, indicates the pitching of horseshoes as one of the pastimes that arouse most enthusiasm among substantial business men and dignified members of the professions. It is only a step back to boyhood after all. Under almost ideal conditions for health, convenience and enjoyment, at a place like Chautauqua every member of the family finds a satisfying home for the summer.

The new styles on sale tomorrow

WHY have the Wirthmor Waists become so popular here and everywhere? The question almost answers itself; they are Waists—which judged by the usual standards—are worth much more than the price at which they're sold. They are really matchless values—matchless because the loyal co-operation of hundreds of progressive merchants, has made possible their production on a scale so vast, and the exercise of such large economies in the making and selling, as to put into every Waist far more value—than could be done if made and sold in the usual way.

SERVING HUMANITY

JOHN W. WESTCOTT EULOGIZES
WILSON IN NOMINATION.

DYNAMITED MONEY DAMS

President Will Live With Lincoln as
Real Servant of People, Freeing
Commercial Slaves.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

St. Louis, Mo., June 16.—President Wilson has saved civilization for humanity by his course with respect to the great war, John W. Westcott, attorney general of New Jersey, declared here last night in renominating Mr. Wilson for the presidency before the Democratic convention.

Today, he said, the nation is at work and at peace. Four years ago commerce languished, industries halted and panic hung over the business world.

Mr. Wilson, he continued, "dynamited the monetary dams and let credit flow to the remotest corners of the land, its spray dashing even upon foreign shores."

"With Lincoln, the emancipator of the chattel slave, he will live forever as the emancipator of the commercial slave."

To have conquered Mexico, Mr. Westcott said, would have destroyed our prosperity, have made the South American republics hate us and have forfeited the respect of the world.

War between the United States and any European nation, he said, would have sat the world aflame and stopped the march of progress for a century.

"The sublimest picture in civil history is that of a plain American citizen maneuvering with the weapons of reason and humanity against the navies and armies of the contending nations, and bringing them in accord with the principles of international law," he said.

"By saving the American system, civilization is saved."

Democracy Leads to Peace.

"The peace of America demonstrates the folly of war. The principles of Democracy furnish the means of avoiding and preventing war. The universal intelligence of men decrees that the war now devastating Europe shall be the last war."

"Sons of America, keep unsullied the sacred shrine of peace, through whose portals will yet pass arm in arm the crowned head and the humble peasant in silent worship of God."

"Out of the ruins and sufferings of the present conflict will arise a temple of justice whose dome will be the blue vault of heaven; its illuminants the eternal stars; its pillars the everlasting hills; its ornaments the woods and bountiful fields; its music the rippling rills, the song of birds, the laughter of happy childhood; its diapason the roar of mills and the hum of industry; its votaries the peoples of the earth; its creed, on which hangs all the law and the prophets, 'love thy neighbor as thyself.' Above its altars in ineffable color will live eternally the vision of its artificer."

ONE RUNAWAY STARTS OTHERS

Regular Melee at Barnard Tuesday Night in Which Several Are Injured.

Last Tuesday night three boys on horseback from Gullford allowed their horses to become frightened and caused the team driven by Chas. O'Howell to become unmanageable. They started to run and threw him from the buggy, rendering him unconscious. The team then ran into the rig belonging to a Mr. Worthington when it stopped. Worthington's team broke loose from the buggy, throwing Mrs. Worthington out and injuring her badly, and was not caught until they came to Emmet Byergo's place. At this time we are unable to learn the extent of the injuries of Mrs. Worthington. Chas. O'Howell was not badly injured.—Barnard Bulletin.

U.S. FLIERS ACTIVE

Lieutenant Thaw Wounded After Thrilling Fight With German.

ALLIES PRAISE AMERICANS.

Gain Further Distinction as Result of a Hot Battle—Thaw Likely to Go on Legion of Honor—Corporal Rockwell
Also in Conflict, and His Exploit Attracts Attention.

Paris.—In one of the sharpest aerial battles yet fought the American squadron gained further distinction.

Lieutenant Thaw and Corporal Kiffin Rockwell flew out at 5 o'clock in the morning recently and saw a Fokker and an Aviatik close by. Lieutenant Thaw dived for the Fokker, and Corporal Rockwell followed. The Aviatik dived for Lieutenant Thaw, but, catching sight of Corporal Rockwell's machine, turned and hurried to safety.

Lieutenant Thaw when fifteen yards from the Fokker fired. The German machine fell at almost the first shot. At 8:30 on the same morning the whole American squadron went over the German lines, its work being mainly preventive, to stop Germans from flying over to make observations of the French lines. The squadron soon found itself in the midst of a group of German aeroplanes and a general battle followed. Eight distinct duels were registered during the next two hours. A bullet hit Corporal Rockwell's wind shield and exploded, fragments hitting him around the nose and mouth but not seriously injuring him. As a result of Corporal Rockwell's exploit he has again been mentioned in dispatches.

Lieutenant Thaw's machine received several bullets. One of these hit him on the elbow, breaking the small bone. Nevertheless he made a perfect landing, wondering whether he was within the German lines until he was relieved by seeing two French soldiers come running up. He is now in Paris, where he will stay until his arm is better. The injury is not severe. He has already been promoted to a full lieutenancy and is now proposed for the Legion of Honor. His victory over the Fokker is likely to assure his receiving the honor.

Corporal Chapman engaged two Aviatiks and put them to flight. An explosive bullet hit his machine, and another grazed his arm, not wounding him. He has been proposed for mention in the order of the army.

Lieutenant Cowdin had two fights, one resulting in the downing of a second aeroplane. He has been proposed for promotion to a second lieutenancy. Bert Hall was actively engaged in the melee and has been proposed for the military medal.

The squadron's French captain and lieutenant were also hotly engaged. The fight was remarkable in that it happened for the most part at no great height—between 1,000 and 2,000 meters. Norman Prince had the bad luck to smash his machine in starting and was unable to take part in the battle. Private Lufbury has arrived at the front to join the squadron, and Private Pavelka is under orders to join it. Fred Prince, Willis Haviland of Chicago and Robert Rockwell of Cincinnati have received brevets and have gone to finish their schooling as aviators at Pau.

Close Friends.

Kansas City, Mo.—A bullet shot twelve years ago by Casimir J. Welch, now justice of the peace, has been removed from the ankle of Martin J. Crowe, county marshal. The shot was one of several fired in a political fight between the two at Twelfth street and Grand avenue.

The encounter was in a political campaign in which Welch was working for one faction of the Democratic organization and Crowe was supporting W. T. Kemper, candidate for mayor.

Didn't Know Neck Was Broken.
Grass Valley, Cal.—W. J. Mow, a miner of this place, has just learned that he has had a broken neck since last August. Mow was struck on top of his head by a falling pipe at that time, but apparently was not much injured. Recently he suffered pains and applied to the accident commission for compensation. An examination disclosed that the bones of his neck were splintered.

for college and spent one year at Davidson. He remained at home the next year, and the following year, 1875, entered Princeton university.

Specialized in Political Economy.

He specialized in political economy, history and debating. Once he was chosen in preliminary contests to represent his debating society against the rival college society. This was an honor. But when young Wilson saw the subject was "Protection vs. Free Trade" and that he was expected to uphold the former he refused to compete, a brave act because he incurred the danger of unpopularity, and gave up the chance at a coveted prize.

While an undergraduate he published an article in the International Review condemning the secret committee practices of congress which brought him some notice.

He was graduated in 1879, among his classmates being Mahlon C. Pitney, later a member of the United States supreme court, and William F. McCombs, who managed Mr. Wilson's first contest for the presidency, but who refused to take up the task again this year.

The following year he entered the University of Virginia and studied law. He also debated and sang on the glee club.

He spent two years at Virginia and then with another young man started the law firm of Renick and Wilson in Atlanta, Ga. The firm was probably not a marked success, for in the following year, 1883, Mr. Wilson entered Johns Hopkins university, studying history and political economy and gaining his doctorate of philosophy.

While at Johns Hopkins he also elaborated his Princeton essay mentioned before into a book, "Congressional Government," which was well received. Just before leaving Johns Hopkins to become teacher of history at Bryn Mawr, Mr. Wilson married Miss Ellen Louise Axson of Savannah, Ga.

He spent three years at Bryn Mawr and began to be in demand in many places as a lecturer. He left the woman's college for Wesleyan university, at Middletown, Conn., and in his two years here he also delivered lectures at Johns Hopkins. Here he published his second book, "The State."

To Princeton in 1890.

In the fall of 1890 he took the chair of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton and remained in this post twelve years, writing at the same time his greatest work, "A History of the American People."

In 1902 he was elected president of Princeton and became a national figure. He severely upset the traditions of Princeton, insisted on democracy and successfully fought a coalition of conservative force formed to oppose him.

His work brought him to the attention of the New Jersey political bosses and when he was informed that the state convention had nominated him for governor he declared it his duty to accept it.

The political bosses were not disturbed when in the course of the campaign he told the people that if elected he would consider himself the leader of the state's Democracy. They didn't think he meant it.

They had not long to discover their mistake. As governor, Mr. Wilson proved a strong figure. He dominated the state legislature and proved somewhat of a radical.

He said he had been mistaken in some of the ideas he had taught at Princeton. In particular, he had opposed the initiative and referendum, but now he espoused them.

Sponsored the "Seven Sisters."

The result of his term in office was a series of state anti-monopoly laws (the so-called "seven sisters"), a primary election law, corrupt practices act, employers' liability act, public utilities act, municipal commission government act and sterilization act.

His remarkable work here got the idea into Mr. McComb's head that his classmate was of presidential timber. Mr. McComb began a quiet campaign for Mr. Wilson among his friends and a few of the delegates to the Baltimore convention of 1912 were pledged to him.

As will be remembered, that convention was one of the most protracted struggles recorded in the history of such gatherings. Champ Clark had more than a majority of votes on the tenth ballot and if the majority instead of the two-thirds rule had been in force would have received the nomination. Mr. Wilson's vote kept growing until on the fifty-sixth ballot he received the necessary two-thirds and was nominated.

In the election which followed Mr. Wilson did not poll a popular majority nor as many as ballots as William J. Bryan had in 1908. But through the division of his opponents between the Republicans and the Progressives he was elected.

He is the twenty-seventh president of the United States, and the eighth native of Virginia to attain that office.

He quickly set to work to carry out his platform promises regarding the tariff and while the measure passed bears the name of Oscar W. Underwood, to Mr. Wilson should go a great share of the credit for forcing its adoption.

Has Broken Many Precedents.

Mr. Wilson broke precedent in an interesting manner by going personally before the senate and the house, meeting jointly, to read all his messages to congress. He did not believe in the old plan of having the president behind the scenes while the message was read by someone else.

Toward Mexico President Wilson adopted the policy he himself described as "watchful waiting." He declared that the Mexicans must solve their own political difficulties without outside help.

However, when Huerta had insulted the flag at Tampico and refused to salute the Stars and Stripes in reparation, the president ordered the seizure of Vera Cruz. Huerta soon abdicated and on the demand of Carranza that the American troops withdraw, the president ordered Vera Cruz evacuated.

This did not solve the difficulty. Disorder continued, many persons were killed along the border, American property in the interior of Mexico was destroyed wholesale and finally when General Francisco Villa raided Columbus, N. M., and killed about eighteen Americans, the president ordered a second invasion of the neighboring republic.

The troops are still there, and Carranza is insisting that they leave immediately.

Mr. Wilson managed to avert a break with Japan over the California exclusion law question, but this question, too, still has the germs of serious trouble in it.

Reserve Bank Great Success.

President Wilson's most undoubted success is the federal reserve bank law. This country-wide instrument for the control of bank notes and credit withstood the test of fire in the chaos of the months following the outbreak of the great war in Europe and is steadily increasing in power and prestige.

The war involving more than half the earth was bound to present serious problems to an American president. These proved of three principal classes: (1) the torpedoing of American ships by Germany; (2) the holding up of non-contraband shipments to neutral countries by the allies; (3) internal violence by partisans of the central powers.

The first question after long negotiations has been solved by the complete breakdown of Germany.

The second difficulty is still pending, but is considered by the administration to be one of money damages and arbitrable.

The internal violence ceased with astonishing completeness at a word from the German government. In the winter of 1915-1916 President Wilson changed his view that the United States needed to make no special preparation for war and became an advocate of national defense measures. He made a speechmaking tour through the middle west to present his ideas to the people.

His strongest cabinet member, Lindley M. Garrison, resigned when the president refused to stand uncompromisingly for a system of national volunteers in time of peace. However, an army reorganization bill increasing the regular army somewhat and the national guard a great deal was passed and signed by the chief executive this month.

Just about the time of the outbreak of the European war President Wilson's wife died. She left three daughters, Mrs. Francis B. Sayre; Mrs. William McAdoo, wife of the secretary of the treasury; and Miss Margaret Wilson. A little over a year later Mr. Wilson married Mrs. Edith Galt of Washington, D. C.

gin of two votes. The women's party declare that the plank was not as strong as the Republican's and that a fight might be made on the floor of the convention.

In Close Touch With Wilson.
In all the deliberations of the committee, the work was dominated by a long distance message with the White House. Every plank was read to the President in its final form and had the unqualified approval of the President before its adoption.

Americanism, the indivisibility and coherent strength of the nation, were proclaimed as the supreme issue of the day by the platform which was submitted to the convention. Military and Naval preparedness to assert and demonstrate this Americanism and violent denunciations of the conspirators for the advancement of the interests of foreign powers were strong planks in the platform.

Among the declarations upon which the President will base his pleas for re-election are a review of the achievements of the administration, a declaration of a tariff for revenue only, the endorsement of the Underwood tariff law and a demand for a non-partisan tariff commission.

A minority report signed by five members of the committee called for complete enfranchisement of the women on the same terms as the men by national constitutional amendment.

The United States For Peace.

The platform contains a strong declaration that it is the duty of the United States to use its power to secure peace and recommends the association as the nations of the world in order to guarantee the privilege of protection of the sovereignty of all people.

The foreign policy of the President is endorsed, the Monroe Doctrine is upheld, Pan-Americanism is pledged, and the Mexican plank sets forth the reason why the U. S. troops are there. It demands that they remain until the restoration of law and order. It declares for intervention only as a last resort.

Merchant marine, conservation of the natural resources, legislation for farmers, good roads, labor planks, education in the senate, civil service and rights of American citizens, are all incorporated in the platform.

Senator J. A. Reed Spoke.

The convention was called to order by Chairman James at 11:30. After the prayer and the report of the committee on resolutions had been called for and Stone had appeared on the platform, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri was invited to speak.

Walsh and Hollis Read It.

At the conclusion of Reed's speech, Senator Stone was recognized to present the platform. He explained he was too fatigued to read it and Senators Walsh of Montana and Hollis of New Hampshire read it for him. The reading of the platform was finished at 1:20 o'clock.

The convention adjourned at 3:15. The convention adopted the platform in full as presented by the resolutions committee and adjourned sine die at 3:15 this afternoon.

The minority report calling for national action on the woman suffrage issue was defeated.

Helen Tobin returned home today from Dubuque, Ia., where she attended the Immaculate Conception Academy for the last year.

Mrs. L. S. Yeo and her children, Emma May and Jack, returned home yesterday after a visit with Mrs. Yeo's parents in Salina, Kan.

TOOK CLOTHES FOR DEBT.

Because He Couldn't Collect $3 He Seized Four Suits.

Indianapolis.—William Devine, a farm laborer, explained in the criminal court that, being unable to collect $3 from James Boyce, living near Plackville, he took four suits of clothes as payment. He admitted he was generous to himself, for the suits were of excellent quality and appearance.

"First I put on one suit," he said, "and then I thought how much better it looked on me than it did on Boyce, so I took the others."

With the disappearance of his suits and Devine, Boyce came before the grand jury and an indictment was returned against the farm laborer. Boyce paid $18 to find and return Devine to the city to face the larceny charge. Devine went to Madison, Ind., after taking the suits.

Judge Collins sentenced Devine to the penal farm for ninety days.

"I'M SO FOND OF MUSIC!"

That Explains What Maid Does With an Advance of Wages.

Chicago.—For a few days a young north shore matron believed she had solved the servant girl problem. Her first girl found the country life too slow and returned home "back of the yards."

This experience afforded an inspiration, and she imported a girl from her former home at Galesburg. Kindly treatment was to be the keynote of success, so when she discovered the new maid lacked underwear she armed her with a dollar and shopping instructions.

In thirty minutes the girl was back, but minus the underwear. In its place she had purchased a mouth organ costing 49 cents, which she exhibited proudly to her mistress with the remark: "I'm so fond of music."
